

No Place To Store Big Crop

Elevators Filled, Railroads Tied Up Farmer Must Find Place For Storage

KANSAS CITY, April 9.—(AP)—The wheat farmers' old dream of a bumper crop with quotations well above a dollar a bushel seems about to materialize.

But that rosy dream of a few years ago has turned into just another nightmare.

There's no place in the wheat belt to store the crop. A record carryover of 630,000,000 bushels is taking up all the elevator space, and the railroads, already working overtime to meet wartime demands, can offer little encouragement to grain shippers seeking elevator accommodations elsewhere.

Must Find Storage

Grainmen from Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma, meeting in Kansas City yesterday could offer only one solution—the grower, himself, is just going to have to provide his own storage space for the largest crop in 10 years, a crop expected to equal the amount of the carry-over.

Frank A. Theis, member of the joint terminal committee of the Kansas City grain market, said that only about 8,000,000 of the listed 53,000,000 bushel elevator capacity of this city was available. Similar conditions prevail elsewhere.

Government Controls Much

Pointing out that more than two thirds of the carryover—enough wheat to supply the country for a year—was under government control, Theis recommended that at least 15,000,000 bushels be moved to other storage.

His committee was prepared to support a recommendation that a permit system be set up to provide equal space for new wheat under loan as the government moved out its present stock, he added.

He estimated there were 100,000,000 bushels of storage available outside of the principal wheat growing area, but locating it, and moving the grain to it over the glutted railroads was another matter.

And that would still leave half a billion bushels above the elevator capacity.

So it looks like the farmer must plan to handle his own wheat indefinitely.

Bomb Blast At Fox Theatre

A mystery dynamite, or bomb blast, at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night shook the downtown section and close-in residential part of the city and caused rapid calls of the city and caused rapid calls of the city and caused rapid calls of the city.

Police rushed to Fifth street and Ohio avenue where the blast had been reported to them and investigation revealed it was at the back of the Fox Theatre. The dynamite, or bomb, had been placed under or against a rear door constructed of wood and covered with heavy sheet metal. The lower part of the door at one point was bent inward and powder-marked. A portion of the concrete door step was shattered. No one was injured.

Steve Souttar, resident manager of the theatre, while the picture "Woman of The Year" was showing told the audience there was no occasion for alarm, but several in the audience quietly left the theatre while most of them remained. A large crowd of curious persons quickly gathered.

Mr. Souttar announces the theatre has not experienced any labor trouble and that no discord had existed with the union in any way.

Mr. Souttar asserted that the bombing incident would not be passed over lightly and that if possible the F. B. I. would be called in, but if it did not take over the investigation special investigators would be called in to work with the local officers on the case.

It is believed that some "crank" passing through the alley back of the theatre on East Fifth street, placed the explosive then made a quick get-away.

Sunday morning, March 29, a bomb damaged the marquee and neon sign at the Uptown theatre. The authorities are endeavoring to find where explosives might have been obtained for these demonstrations of vandalism.

Plan To Train Pilots In High Schools

Course To Be Taught Where There Are Fifteen Cadets

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY
WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—The nation's high schools soon will be geared to the elementary training of pilots to fly America's great air armada.

J. W. Studebaker, U. S. commissioner of education, disclosed today that the plan contemplated the teaching of aeronautics in all high schools where 15 or more prospective air cadets can be enrolled.

"It is expected," Mr. Studebaker said, "that recommendations for pre-pilot refresher courses in physics and mathematics soon will be sent to all school systems of the country—these recommendations to be followed soon thereafter by the publication of detailed suggestions emanating from the army and navy as to the course outlines and instruction materials."

The office of education and representatives of the army, navy and civil aeronautics administration now are conferring to determine what the high schools can do immediately to speed the pilot training program, in view of the president's goal to produce 60,000 planes this year and 125,000 in 1943.

Tentative Plan

Studebaker outlined tentative plans agreed upon as follows:

1. For the present semester,

Natives Of Iceland Look With Awe On U.S. Forces Now There

Life in Iceland is quiet and uneventful these days, but if and when things do start popping, the United States Marines will be there to welcome it. Private First Class Gerald W. Nicholson of Sedalia has been there for the past nine and a half months, and he has seen American forces gradually expand over the North Atlantic until it is strongly fortified.

Nicholson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Nicholson, 1400 East 13th St. joined the marines November, 1940. He will be 20 in October. A brother, Junior Nicholson, 20, is a member of the marines, having joined the service 19 months ago. Gerald Nicholson is visiting his parents at present, but his furlough will be up next week, and he must return to his northern post Tuesday.

Cold And Windy

Nights are long in the winter, and the weather is cold and windy most of the time there, according to the Sedalia youth. Sleeping might be difficult at first in the summer, he thought, for there is no absolute darkness there.

The quantity of food presents no problem to the American men, but the quality of it does. The main fare consists of powdered eggs and other canned goods, potatoes and milk, with fruit for dessert occasionally, and although they get plenty of it, and it does not taste bad, Nicholson admitted that the fare became a little tiresome eventually.

Suspected Of Espionage

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—(AP)—A young woman identifying herself as Mrs. Rubie Lyle Holcombe, 18, Kennett, Mo., was detained by police today on suspicion of espionage.

Police said she also would be questioned by the FBI. Detective Captain Vernon Rasmussen said police, hearing the blue-eyed, golden-haired young woman had been entertaining Japanese, found in her apartment a powerful short wave radio, scores of pictures of soldiers and numerous pamphlets of a subversive nature and material "which should prove interesting to the FBI."

Mrs. Holcomb, denying she was a spy, said she was the wife of a soldier stationed at San Luis Obispo, Calif., knew only one Japanese and that her hobby was taking snapshots of soldiers on street corners.

Leonard Wood Soldier Killed

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo., April 9.—(AP)—Pvt. Pherson K. Mishler, 22, of Pottsville, Mich., was killed today and two other soldiers were seriously injured in an automobile accident on Highway 28, three miles north of Dixon.

The car Mishler was driving left the road and struck a telephone pole. The injured were Corp. Stanley L. Zielinski, Albion, Mich., and Pvt. Ralph Weir, La Veta, Colo.

Mishler was the thirty-second soldier to die in traffic accidents in the Fort Wood area since last May and the third this year.

Merchandise Taken From Salesman's Car

Approximately $800 in sample haberdashery was reported taken from the car of K. E. Tehman, Kansas City, a salesman for the Wilson Haberdashery Co., Chicago, Ill., while it was parked just east of the Bothwell hotel.

Mr. Tehman reported to the police he had parked his car on the lot about 6 o'clock Wednesday night, at which time he had ten cases of sample haberdashery in it. This morning when he went to get his car he found a ventilator on the car had been pried open and the door of the car opened.

Eight of the cases were missing and they contained sweaters, underclothing, hosiery and ties.

Convention Of Elks Here On May 23 And 24

H. C. Davis Resigns As Exalted Ruler; E. J. Hansman Successor

Sedalia is to have a state convention of the B. P. O. Elks on Saturday and Sunday, May 23 and 24 according to arrangements perfected Wednesday evening and on approval of the various Elks lodges of the state of Missouri.

This was decided following a visit by M. F. Thurston, president of the Missouri State Elks Association, and Ed. F. Immerthal, secretary of that body, both of Columbia, who had dinner here Wednesday evening with Ernest W. Baker, vice-president and Henry W. Salveter, trustee of the Elks' state organization, and a group of other leading Elks at Hotel Bothwell. At the dinner were several of the Elks officers and past exalted rulers of Sedalia lodge No. 125.

Bring Many Visitors

It is anticipated that the gathering will bring three hundred visitors here for the two days' sessions and arrangements are to be made to afford suitable entertainment for them while here.

Originally the convention was scheduled for Joplin, Mo., but owing to construction of Camp Crowder in close proximity to Joplin that city's lodge waived its rights to the honor of being host owing to crowded hotel conditions.

The visiting officers after the dinner attended a meeting of the Sedalia lodge and with Past Exalted Ruler George H. Scruton, serving as exalted ruler, an executive committee composed of Carl Schrader, chairman, Hugo Sparr and Joseph Reid was appointed to complete plans for the event in cooperation with the association officers.

Heroic Defenders Of Bataan Overcome; Forces Exhausted

Two British Cruisers Sunk By Japanese Bombers; Blow To British Naval Strength

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 9.—Two British 8-inch-gun cruisers, the 10,000-ton Cornwall and the 9,975-ton Dorsetshire whose torpedoes finished off the German battleship Bismarck little less than a year ago, have been sunk by Japanese bombers ranging the Bay of Bengal and battering at thin-stretched British naval communications to India, the admiralty announced today.

The shock of the loss of the two powerful ships rubbed the gill off the admiralty's announcement two hours earlier that a British submarine had sent a 10,000-ton Italian cruiser to the bottom of the central Mediterranean.

The sinking of the Cornwall and Dorsetshire was a blow to the British naval strength immediately available to cope with Japanese aircraft carriers and warships reported increasing their activities astride the sea lanes to Calcutta in the bay between the bombed coast of India and invaded Burma.

Japs Claim Other Sinkings

Japanese broadcasts quoted imperial headquarters claims that in addition to the cruisers Japanese forces sank 21 allied merchantmen in the Bay of Bengal up to last Tuesday, and badly damaged 23 other ships.

Heard, too, but without any other confirmation, was a Berlin broadcast quoting dispatches purportedly from Tokyo that Japanese expeditionary forces supported by cruisers and destroyers landed last Sunday on the Burma west coast and were within 30 miles of the Bengal border of India.

That would place them between the border and the big British port of Akyab.

Reports Denied

Earlier roundabout reports that the Japanese had forced their way ashore at Akyab have been denied by the British headquarters.

Social Workers Must Preserve Home Front

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 9.—(AP)—Bishop Charles H. Leblond of the Catholic diocese of St. Joseph asserts social workers will be called upon to prevent repetition of gangsterism, juvenile delinquency and poverty which followed the last war.

Speaking last night before the 800 persons attending the 42nd annual conference of the Missouri Association of Social Welfare, Bishop Leblond said social workers must "preserve the home front."

"The aim of social work is to make each town and city a fortress of might and love of freedom," he said.

Four AWOL Caught Here

Held By Police For Army Officers Coming For Them

Military police of the United States Army will arrive this afternoon to take in custody two and possibly four soldiers, who are AWOL from their camps. Two are Negroes who were picked up early Wednesday at the Missouri Pacific depot, and the other two are white boys, who were picked up early today upon a "tip" they were A.W.O.L.

The white boys gave their names as Stanley Harapat of Brookhart, Minn., and William A. Wren, of Columbia, Mo. They are from a company near Mineral Wells Texas. They told the police they had been away from camp for about eight days.

They stayed at the Milner hotel and this morning gave a check for payment of their room. A short time later they were picked up near the Wagner Produce Co., near Missouri avenue and the Missouri Pacific tracks, by Officer Howard Nelson.

One Ready To Return

Wren was inclined to be a little "tough" when picked up, but soon consoled himself to the fact that he had to wait until called for by the military authorities. Harapat had little to say other than that he was A.W.O.L. and wanted to get back to his post.

The Negroes, whose names were given as Wendell Marshall and Clifford Valentine, are from Ft. Riley, Kas. A telegram received late Wednesday night regarding them was received by the local police from military authorities.

Medical Plan For Defense

Prepared And Ready For Use By Local Doctors And Laymen

Dr. C. D. Osborne, recently appointed director of emergency medical service for Pettis county under Civilian Defense, has as members of his advisory committee: Dr. A. L. Walter, who is on the County Council of Defense, Dr. W. A. Beckemeyer, county health officer, Dr. E. C. Snavely, city physician, Dr. W. C. Dansey, city physician, Dr. W. A. Bishop, coroner and Mrs. Gordon Potter, superintendent of the Bothwell hospital.

The committee is anxious to have volunteers for the following work: Telephone operators, stenographers, record clerks, messengers, nurses aids, stretcher bearers and assistants to the sanitary officer.

For Emergency Only

While it is hoped this service will never have to be called upon, nevertheless it may be called into use, and because of this a complete organization with training for the various units has been set up. Complete equipment for a first aid unit, minus an ambulance or light truck, has been purchased, and is now stored in the basement of the postoffice building.

Cooperation on the part of all citizens and lay organizations with the emergency medical service is assumed in the plans. Personnel requirements are based on extreme emergency needs and on a possible breakdown of all utilities, lights, water and communications for the period of disaster.

Details of the Final Chapter Not Available; Some Allies May Have Evacuated To Ft. Mills

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson indicated today that 36,853 gallant American and Filipino soldiers faced death or capture as the result of the apparent collapse of the stubborn defense of Bataan Peninsula in the Philippines.

Secretary Stimson said that Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright yesterday had 36,853 effectives on Bataan when the Japanese succeeded in enveloping the east flank of the defense lines despite a heroic counterattack attempt by physical exhausted troops.

A war department communique earlier had announced that Japanese success indicated "the probability that the defense of Bataan had been overcome" and Stimson discussed the situation at his press conference.

President Roosevelt has authorized the Philippine commander to make any decision he deemed necessary in the light of events, Stimson said.

Still Guarding Manila Bay

Stimson said the figure of 36,853 est reports from the Philippines indicated that Corregidor and the other fortifications guarding the entrance to Manila bay still stood, but declined to make predictions as to how long they could hold out.

"This is only a temporary loss," Stimson said. "We shall not stop until we drive out the invaders from the islands."

Stimson said the figure of 853 effectives was in the report received yesterday from General Wainwright. He stressed that this figure included only the men fighting on Bataan at that time.

Excluded were American and Filipino troops guarding the defenses of Corregidor and the other islands, the wounded, nearly 20,000 civilian refugees, and some 6,000 Filipino laborers who were non-combatant.

Reinforcements Attempted
Stimson disclosed that under the direction of Brigadier General Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war who is now minister to New Zealand, urgent efforts were made beginning last January 11 to reinforce the besieged Philippine forces.

From a base in Australia several ship loads of supplies were sent to the Philippines, and part of these supplies reached Corregidor and Bataan.

"But for every ship that arrived, we lost nearly two ships," Stimson said.

Because of these supplies, the defenders were never short of ammunition, the secretary said, but had been on short rations.

Troops Exhausted
WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Overwhelming Japanese forces in the Philippines, a war department communique said today, have made advances which indicated "the probability that the defense of Bataan had been overcome," despite a heroic counterattack attempt by physically exhausted defenders.

Informed quarters expressed a growing belief that the stubborn resistance of the American-Filipino troops, who had held part of the peninsula since early January against all Japanese attacks, had virtually ceased.

Army men expressed doubt that large numbers of surviving troops could be evacuated under fire across the two miles of open water between the southern tip of the peninsula and the island fortress of Corregidor, which was still held by American forces.

Such an evacuation operation for a defeated force, they noted, was notoriously one of the most difficult.

Shipping Muddle A Sour Spot In War Program

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series on the crucial U. S. shipping situation.)

WASHINGTON—There are two major phases to the U. S. shipping picture, currently the sour spot in the war program. One, discussed two days ago in this column, is the problem of speeding the production of hundreds of desperately needed cargo vessels. As revealed in that article, this vast program is being seriously hampered by waste, inefficiency and pilfering of public funds and materials.

The other phase is the equally vital job of loading and routing the great fleet of merchant ships needed to supply the embattled war machines of the United Nations. Here too the story is often the same—mismanagement, tragic waste and worse.

The picture is not all black. As in the case of shipbuilding, the situation on the West Coast now is very good—thanks to recent improvement due to the appointment of a regional shipping czar, Dean Wayne Morse of Oregon University. Authority was centralized in his hands on the joint recommendation of ship operators and the CIO longshoreman's union, the dominant maritime labor organization.

But on the Atlantic coast the picture is very different. There it smells to high heaven.

Following the excellent results obtained by the appointment of Morse, the President advised War Shipping Administrator Emory S. (Jerry) Land to clean up the dismal east coast mess the same way. The inside word is that Land balked under pressure from the operators and Jack Ryan, burly boss of the AFL longshoreman's union, which rules the Boston, New York and Philadelphia waterfronts.

Rival CIO marine leaders charge that behind the opposition of Ryan and the operators is the fear that under an impartial federal shipping czar the CIO unions will wrest control of the waterfront from them. But whatever the reason, it is a fact that Land has resisted taking the step that has produced such excellent results on the west coast.

Mismanagement And Sabotage
It is also a fact that the ship loading situation on the Atlantic coast has become so bad that the Justice Department and Truman committee have started probes that already have uncovered shocking evidence.

These disclosures are so serious that insiders say it is practically certain there will be arrests and prosecutions on criminal charges. These are some of the things discovered by the investigators.

1. That large numbers of known members of the Bund, Christian Front and similar organizations are permitted to load ships carrying war supplies to Britain and Russia.

2. That one ship broke in two and capsized in mid-ocean due to improper loading. Tanks and other heavy equipment had been loaded fore and aft and light materials amidships, violating the first rule of ship loading to distribute a cargo evenly. Investigating agents are convinced this was sabotage.

3. Shifting cargo forced another ship to turn back from a Russia-bound convoy. The vessel was torpedoed and sunk a day later.

4. Five other vessels which developed cargo-shifting trouble also had to turn back, but fortunately escaped Nazi subs. However, to save them from breaking up and capsizing, a considerable portion of their precious war cargoes had to be thrown into the sea. When the ships landed it was found that in two of them there were no cotter pins in the shackles to which wires and chains, securing the cargoes, were fastened. This was chalked down by investigators as another clear case of sabotage at the loading port.

5. Recently in Philadelphia a number of longshoremen belonging to a certain pro-Axis organization, boycotted a ship assigned to carry important fighting equipment to Russia. The vessel was held up more than a week. Fifty-four men working in staggered gangs of 18 each could have loaded this ship easily in two days. Yet due to some mysterious influence the necessary 54 men could not be immediately found in this teeming port city.

"You don't have to worry about any broken windows—these birds won't get a foul with Lefty in there pitching!"

Note: Several weeks ago, in an effort to clean up the bad ship-loading muddle that had developed under Land, the President brought back Lewis Douglas, one-time budget director, from London, where he was assisting Lend-Lease Coordinator Averell Harriman, and put him to work on the problem. Douglas already has greatly improved the routing situation.

Shenanigans

Chinese Ambassador Hu Shih called on the President the other day, and took time out from war problems to say:

"Mr. President, I am a great admirer of your radio talks. Your delivery is superb, but even more remarkable is your choice of language." Roosevelt thanked the ambassador for the compliment, but Hu Shih had more to say. "It is your mastery of simple language, which I most admire—your scorn of polysyllables and academic phrases."

"But," continued Hu Shih, "there was one word in a recent broadcast which I couldn't understand. It was a four-syllable word, and you seldom use four-syllable words."

"What word was that?" asked the President.

"Shenanigans," said the ambassador.

War Chaff

If you think U. S. taxes are stiff, here are a few facts on what the British taxpayer is up against: British war taxes now are so steep that there are practically no incomes over $25,000. Sales taxes range from 12 to 24 per cent. The tax on the cheapest brand of cigarettes is 14 cents a package; $2.30 on a bottle of whiskey, and 10 cents on a pound of sugar. . . . When CIO president Phil Murray addressed a public meeting in Charlotte, N. C., he was introduced by Dr. Frank Graham, head of the University of N. C., and prominent among the audience were the governor of the state and the mayor of the city. Also, Murray was extended a cordial welcome to Charlotte in a full-page newspaper ad paid for by local business men and AFL unions. . . . Lt. General Ben Lear, plain-talking commander of the Second Army, made his widely quoted speech before the Economic club in Detroit at the personal request of Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson. Lear's candid speech and equally blunt actions are highly esteemed among top war department officials.

Cards Picked To Overthrow The Dodgers

Sports Writers' Vote One-Sided Over The Dodgers; Reds 3rd

NEW YORK, April 9—(P)—By a 2 to 1 margin, the experts today picked the St. Louis Cardinals to overthrow Brooklyn's Dodgers and win the 1942 National League pennant.

In a surprisingly one-sided vote, 46 of the 74 baseball writers balloting in the annual Associated Press pennant poll tabbed the Cards to finish on top. One other writer, Jim Gould of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, couldn't make up his mind between the Cards and Cincinnati Reds and split his ballot.

Only 23 picked the Dodgers to repeat their 1941 triumph in the senior circuit. Four forecast a return of the Reds to the top spot they held in 1939 and '40. No one could see the Cards worse than third, while four writers picked Brooklyn as low as fourth.

Those were the only three clubs drawing ballots for first place and the voting wound up in that order, with St. Louis piling up 563½ points on a basis of 8 for first place vote, 7 for a second, 6 for a third, etc.

Brooklyn had 515 and Cincinnati 434½.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who brought up the rear of the first division in last year's pennant parade, were tabbed to do that again this time. Frank Frisch's frolics were selected on three second place ballots, 21 third and 32 fourth and compiled 375 points.

The second division voting wound up with New York, Chicago, Boston and (you guessed it) Philadelphia's Phillies in that order. There was quite a scramble for fifth place, with the Giants, under Mel Ott's brand new management, winning out, 290 to 244.

Naturally, there was no argument for the cellar. In fact, only four of the 74 writers had the Phils in seventh place. One hardy citizen, however, saw them as high as fifth in his crystal ball.

Here is how the experts voted (points on 8-7-6-5-4 etc basis).

St. Louis 46½ firsts; 26½ seconds and one third for a total of 563½.

Brooklyn 23 firsts; 33 seconds; 14 thirds and 4 fourths for a total of 515.

Cincinnati 4½ 1st; 10½ seconds 34 thirds; 21 fourths and 4 fifths for a total of 434½.

Pittsburgh 3 seconds; 21 thirds;

32 fourths; 15 fifths; 2 sixths and 1 seventh for a total of 375.

New York 4 thirds; 12 fourths; 35 fifths; 21 sixths; 1 seventh and 1 last place for a total of 290.

Chicago 1 second 4 fourths; 19 fifths; 41 sixths; 9 sevenths for a total of 244.

Boston 1 fourth; 10 sixths; 59 sevenths and 4 last place votes for a total of 157.

Philadelphia 1 fifth; 4 sevenths and 69 last place votes for a total of 81.

Ben Hogan Is Favorite In Golf Tourney

The 72-Hole Masters' Tournament May Be Last For Duration

BY GAYLE TALBOT

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 9—(P)—Over one of the world's loveliest golf courses, the royal family of the game starts playing at 1:30 p.m. (Eastern War Time) today in the 72-hole Masters' tournament, with the snarl of military motors overhead to remind them that this probably is the last sentimental stop at Bobby Jones' course until after the war.

Big Bust-Up At Hand

Even though they have been playing against each other all winter—most of them—from the west coast across the country, the boys seemed not to realize that the big bust-up was at hand until they landed here. Now they do, and it has given them an added incentive to win the most coveted of the titles, excepting only the open. It was a tense, tightly-wound field of 42 that teed off today.

The Masters', though it was what might be called a "manufactured" tournament to begin with, has in the last eight years taken a remarkable hold on the players. One and all, they look forward each year to receiving one of the big embossed invitations, and when none shows up they are crestfallen.

Partly, no doubt, it is because they are playing in the same field with Bobby Jones. It seems almost unbelievable, sometimes, that such mechanically perfect players as the two Texans, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson, for instance, should stand in such honest awe of Jones. But they do, and to their credit.

Jones And Wood

At 2 o'clock today Jones goes down the first wide fairway with Craig Wood, the defending champion and the 1941 open champion. They will carry the gallery to the exclusion of the Nelsons, the Hogans, the Picards and the Littles.

Further Down, playing together, will be little Bobby Cruickshank, the "wee Scot" whom Jones defeated in a play-off for the 1923 open crown, going around with Tommy Armour, who won in 1927. Cruickshank has just become a grandfather. The money tournaments do not produce that kind of sentiment.

The overwhelming favorite to win is Ben Hogan, a dark, sober money-winner who was born in Stephenville, Texas. Ben, a boy of under medium height with high, "Indian" cheek bones, doesn't say much, but he has been winning most of the money for a couple of years.

His game, following him for 18 holes, looks about as perfect as golf could be. Right from the tee to the flag his shots follow a line you scarcely could better with a rifle.

He misses scoring a birdie only when he fails to drop a putt. Armour and Gene Sarazen, who

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, April 9 — The horses start running today at Jamaica and Keeneland; New England opens its season Saturday, the day after Florida closes. . . wonder when the fans are supposed to find time to refill their pocketbooks? . . . It's our idea that all sports seasons run too long. There would be more fun and just as many customers if they'd start later and end earlier so the fans could get a breathing spell and get steamed up about each new sport as its season came along. . . Another suggestion: If Leon Rains' peace conference between the Army and the A.A.U. doesn't smooth things out today, why not have an arrangement whereby the armed forces could and to their credit.

Sportpourri

After the Augusta Masters' golf tourney, Craig Wood, the National Open champion, and Ben Hogan, the top money winner, will play a series of matches for the "unofficial world championship" and a wad of cash for war relief. . . Looks as if Hogan had better win the Masters. . . Alsab may race in Toronto during the Woodbine Park meeting in May if a date can be arranged that won't conflict with any of his stakes engagements.

Tactful Approach

Lieut. George Earnshaw, the old Athletics' pitcher, wanted to arrange a game between his Jacksonville, Fla., Naval Air Station ball team and MacDill Field at Tampa. A formal request brought no reply so Lieut. Earnshaw wrote to Sergeant Hank Greenberg as follows: "Listen, you big lug, I hear you have a ball club down there. We want a game. I may not have much left but I can strike you out three or four times."

P. S.: The game will be played early in May.

Latest interpretation of the California boxing rules, sent out by Chief Inspector Willie Ritchie: If a fighter who is well in front in a fight sustains a cut and is unable to continue he will get credit for winning. If the guy who is hurt is behind at the time, the match is called no contest. Old ruling was that if the guy who was winning got cut they called it a technical draw.

Quick Quote

Mickey Cochrane (concerning the Great Lakes Naval Station team): "Anyone who can throw, bat or field will get a chance to play, and this includes ex-National leaguers."

Briefs From The Training Camps

By The Associated Press

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., — On the basis of comparative results, the Detroit Tigers are inclined to pick the St. Louis Cardinals over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League pennant race. The Tigers owned one victory in eight starts today as they closed a nine-game series with the Red Birds. Detroit gained a 2-1 edge over the Dodgers in the Grapefruit league.

ENID, Okla.—The Pittsburgh Pirates will field one of the youngest teams in the majors when the baseball firing begins in earnest next week. Exclusive of batters, the Pirates' opening day lineup will average 25 years per man. The Bucs and the Philadelphia Athletics resume their training series here today after being kept idle by weather the past two days.

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Manager Luke Sewell believes the fate of the St. Louis Browns, being picked by many to finish in the first division, depends largely on how well his outstanding rookie, Vern Stephens, can hit and play shortstop. Luke is confident he will make the grade in the big time, but if he fails, anything is likely to happen to the Brownies, who wind up their exhibition string against Montgomery today.

WILMINGTON, Del. — Dolph Camilli and Billy Herman, who have been receiving hospital treatment, have returned to the Brooklyn Dodgers with assurances that neither is suffering from anything that a few days' rest won't cure. A deep cold settled in Camilli's back, while Herman is recovering from a strained muscle in his side.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — After being forced to pass up a $2,500 advance sale in Lexington, Ky., because of weather, the Boston Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds came here today to wind up their fifth consecutive northward series. Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox picked Joe Dobson to pitch for the Red Sox, who have dropped six of the 11 games.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — For the third straight day, the New York Giants are counting on Carl Hubbell to start against the Cleveland Indians here this afternoon. Hubbell was slated to pitch Tuesday, but weather conditions forced cancellation of the game. He was rescheduled yesterday, and again weather prevented play.

Cleveland's utility infielder—Russ Peters, has a broken nose. Oscar Grimes, veteran utility man who plays all infield posts, went home to Cleveland last night with a cold and 102-degree temperature. Peters was injured several weeks ago by a thrown ball.

ENID, Okla. — Manager Connie Mack expects Bill Knickerbocker's "baseball sense" to smooth

Kite Contest

A large number of Sedalia Cub packs are expected to enter the Cub kite flying contest which will be held Sunday afternoon on the race track infield at the Missouri State Fair grounds.

There will be four contests for the boys. A 100 yard dash, in which they will use that amount of string to fly their kites, and a 100 yard message relay. In the relay contest, 100 yards of string will be attached to each contestant's kite and a piece of paper will be placed at the ground end of the string. The contestant who manages to get his paper blown up to the kite in the shortest time will become the winner.

A 15 minute race and a 15 minute distance contest also will be held. The contests will begin at 2:30 o'clock, if the weather is not threatening. Cub masters will judge the contests.

Babe Ruth Improving But Still In Danger

HOLLYWOOD, April 9—(P)—The once mighty Babe Ruth, stricken critically ill yesterday, is improving slowly, but still not out of danger.

Ruth's nurse made that report twice during the night as the former home run king of major league baseball lay wrapped in a heavy jacket because of recurring chills. Alternately, his temperature soared.

Babe, 48, has had a strenuous picture-making, war bond selling, military camp entertaining two months here. Previously, he dieted away 40 pounds to get in trim for the picture, about his late New York Yankee teammate, Lou Gehrig.

Heroic Defenses of Bataan Overcome; Defenders Exhausted

difficult of all actions, and they pointed to Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's report that a counterattack by his first corps "failed due to complete physical exhaustion of the troops," as another factor militating against the evacuation of many soldiers.

Continuous Bombing
Heavy Japanese bombers also have attacked the areas near the southern extremity of Bataan, nearest point to Corregidor, al- most continuously in the last few days.

The entire Japanese army on Luzon, of which Bataan is a part, has been estimated variously at from 200,000 to 300,000 men, and as long ago as February 10 the war department was able to iden- tify five Japanese divisions as be- ing on Bataan by their numerical designations, with a sixth back on the communications line and an additional force manning the siege guns on the Cavite shore.

Overwhelmingly outnumbered, American-Filipino defenders fac- ing the Japs were estimated here not to have exceeded two skeleton divisions in recent days, though forced to fight continuously day and night against an enemy able to throw fresh troops into the fray in relays.

Many Non-Combatants
One handicap suffered by Gen- eral Wainwright was that a large proportion of the personnel behind the front lines was non-combat- ant, including wounded, supply troops and thousands of Filipinos who fled from their captured vil- lages. All had to be fed from the defenders' limited food supplies.

The war department said Gen- eral Wainwright had messaged that the Japanese had enveloped the east flank of his defending line.

'Gay Nineties' At Kiwanis Club

A sterling prevue performance of "The Gay Nineties" was pre- sented by Director Burney Mor- riss at the Sedalia Kiwanis club meeting in Bothwell hotel this noon. mathematics and physics applic- able to the work of pilots might be handled as extra subjects in the boys' schedules, or taught be- fore and after regular school hours.

2. Intensive refresher and pre- pilot training courses might be given in the summer schools of the larger communities and boys from nearby communities permit- ted to attend, tuition free.

3. Next September a full ses- semester's work in aeronautics should be offered in every high school in which as many as 15 prospective physically qualified air cadets can be enrolled. Boys who have taken such courses will be enabled, upon their induction into air cadet training, to devote more time to flying. Fewer boys will be "washed out" in the ground school phases of their first three months' training period.

Plans Issued Soon
Definite plans for the adminis- tration of such courses will be is- sued soon. The outline of the plans made no mention of com- pulsion, it being assumed that el- igible youths would make up their own minds whether to take the courses.

Two British Cruisers Sunk By Japanese

ers at New Delhi.

The admiralty's announcement did not say when the Dorsetshire and Cornwall were sunk.

There was no intimation what other warships were operating with the cruisers. The fact that 1,100 crew members were saved indicated that other ships were on hand.

Running Sea Fight
The Rome radio reported that the remaining units of the British squadron were engaged in a running sea fight with stronger Japanese naval forces.

Observers here said survivors of the cruiser sinkings might have been taken to the naval station at Trincomalee, target of a renewed Japanese air attack on Ceylon today.

Informed sources believed the British Indian ocean naval squad- ron probably was operating from Trincomalee, or at least might have made for the base to await reinforcement after the smashing aerial attack which cost the two cruisers.

Crews Picked Up
A communique said both war- ships went down under Japa- nese aerial attacks, but 1,100 of the crews were picked up.

The cruisers were the Dorset- shire and the Cornwall, whose two crews normally totalled 1,330 men.

"It is known that more than 1,100 survivors, including the commanding officers of both ships, have been picked up," the ad- miralty said.

The commanders were Capt. E. W. S. Agar of the Dorsetshire and Capt. P. C. W. Mainwaring of the Cornwall.

AMAZING DISCOVERY

Foods fried the Spry way actually as digestible as if baked or boiled!

EXTRA DELICIOUS, TOO

SO CRISP and delicate-tasting. For purer Spry lets you get the FULL, rich, natural flavor of foods instead of dulling it as ordinary shortenings may. Enjoy these wonderful Spry-fried foods today and every day. For remember, they're easy to digest, so digestible even a child can eat them!

TRY THESE CRISPY CORN AND HAM FRITTERS fried the digestible Spry way

1 cup sifted flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon Spry
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk
1 cup canned whole corn kernels, drained
1 cup cooked ham, cubed

Sift flour with baking powder, sugar and salt. Cut in Spry. Combine egg and milk and add to flour mixture. Add corn and ham and mix. Drop by tablespoons into deep hot Spry (375° F.) and fry about 4 minutes or until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serves 6.

Notice their thin, delicate golden crust—their FULL, rich, natural flavor. Notice, too, how much pleasanter Spry is to fry with. For Spry's purer and doesn't smoke at correct frying temperature. So remember, don't wait for Spry to smoke before starting to fry!

Remember
You can fry with Spry over and over—that's REAL economy

Purer Spry stays clear and sweet after repeated fryings. Just let it cool a little, then strain into empty can. Thus Spry costs very little per frying—another big advantage!

Family Pools Sugar To Make Cake For Special Treat

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Let each member of the family contribute part of his weekly sugar allowance to one gala springtime cake. Then call it a family feast.

Orange Coconut Cake

Two cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1/2 cup butter or other shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, unbeaten; 3/4 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add orange rind to butter and cream thoroughly; add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy.

Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

Spread Sunny Orange Filling between layers, and Orange Snow Frosting on top and sides of cake, spreading sides and one-inch border on top with shredded coconut, garnishing with orange sections, free from membranes.

Sunny Orange Filling

Four tablespoons sugar, 1 1/2 tablespoons flour, dash of salt, 1 egg yolk, 1/2 cup orange juice, 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon butter.

Combine sugar, flour and salt in top of small double boiler; add egg yolk and fruit juice and mix thoroughly. Place over boiling water and cook 10 minutes, or until thickened, stirring constantly. Add orange rind and butter. Cool. Makes enough filling to spread between two 8-inch layers.

Orange Snow Frosting

One egg white, unbeaten; 3/4 cup sugar, 2 1/2 tablespoons water, 1 tablespoon orange juice, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind.

Combine egg white, sugar, water and orange juice in top of small double boiler or in small bowl, beating with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed.

Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater and cook 4 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks.

Remove from boiling water; add 1 tablespoon orange rind and beat until thick enough to spread. Spread on cake. Makes enough frosting to cover top and sides of two 8-inch layers.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Stewed rhubarb, green herb omelet, whole-wheat toast, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Fresh vegetable soup, toasted bacon sandwiches, raisin cookies, tea milk.

DINNER: Fricassee of veal shoulder, new potatoes, parsley carrots, spring salad, gala orange coconut cake, coffee milk.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

ALONG with the nutritional advice being disseminated to American housewives by a variety of sources, something new has been added to the American diet. Briefly, it's an emphasis on "zest," that intangible condiment served at mealtimes. In many instances, it is found in a dash of color. For example, a fruit cup of oranges and grapefruit seems more palatable with the addition of a red or green cherry and a sprig of mint. Instead of sliced tomatoes, whole tomatoes nestled in a bed of watercress is gay enough to serve as an appetite reaser.

This season of the year makes it particularly easy to add the "z" to diets. Markets overflow with new fruits and vegetables—and old favorites show more attractive prices. Best buys this week in the fruit stalls include oranges, grapefruit, avocados and strawberries, while vegetable counters offer as specials beets, cauliflower, carrots, mushrooms, celery, lettuce, squash and spinach.

In meats, chunks of lamb are excellently priced. Other good buys include ribs, pot roasts and chuck steaks, brisket and plate beef, roasting chickens, duck and large turkeys.

The following Sunday dinner menus, prepared by Marion Rouse Budd, of the A and P kitchens, are planned for three different budgets—but all will add zest to the menu:

Meat Loaf with Tomato Sauce
Mashed Potatoes
Buttered Shoestring Carrots
Enriched Bread
Baked Raisin Custard,
Lemon Sauce

Medium Cost Dinner

FOOD MARKET

Advice

THE vegetable stalls this week are borrowing colors from the traditional Easter egg. Ruby beets, golden carrots, verdant peas—all seem brighter and more colorful because spring has officially arrived.

As bright as the colors in the vegetable stalls, is the price news. Beets are lower; carrots have dropped in price; celery shows fractional drops; and asparagus and cauliflower are lower. A new addition to the starred items is squash. New supplies of spinach are expected this week from Virginia. Lima bean supplies continue light.

Apples, avocados, grapefruit and oranges continue to hold price attention in the fruit stalls. Strawberries are arriving in increasing numbers.

Meat news from the A & P reflects the rosate hue shed by the fruit stalls. Beef prices remain static, with a possibility of slight reductions. New starred items in veal include loin chops and legs. Pork prices remain approximately the same. Smoked and ready-to-eat hams are starred this week, with prices slightly lower than they have been for the past several weeks.

A large supply of four-pound roasting chickens are reported arriving in these markets, at very special prices, and a new crop of Long Island ducklings is arriving. Heavier turkeys show price drops.

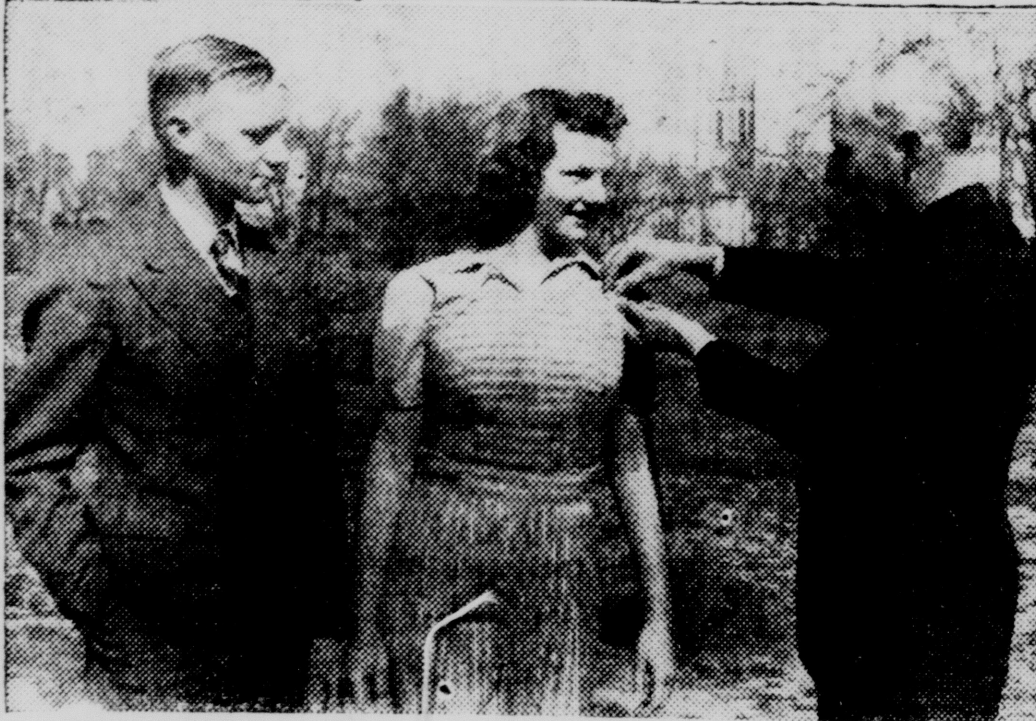

Egg Market Firm

Egg prices remain the same. Quality and quantity both are excellent, the markets report.

Fish, because of the holiday season at the last of next week, is expected to be scarce. Better North Carolina shad production is anticipated. Although King mackerel, Spanish mackerel and bluefish production has been light, prices are reasonable. Yellowtail and flounders will probably be lower in price next week. Heavier groundfish production is anticipated, with possible slight reductions in price.

Based on the best buys of the current week, here is a suggested menu for your next Sunday dinner:

Cream of Spinach Soup
Baked Stuffed Fish
Tomatoes Stuffed with Corn
Lettuce with French Dressing
Enriched Bread
Hot Frosted Gingerbread
Tea or Coffee

The awarding of Victory Pins to those 4-H club members working on projects directly related to war activities is one of the features of the National 4-H Club Mobilization Week now under way (April 5-11). In the photograph, Director J. W. Burch of the Missouri Agricultural Extension Service is awarding such a pin to Melba Davis of Cole county, who is carrying on a food preservation and victory garden project. Awarding a like decoration is Eugene Thompson of the same county, who is enrolled in the sow and litter, dairy, and sheep projects. During this week, a special effort is being made to give every farm boy and girl an opportunity to enroll in 4-H club work through local club leaders or county extension agents.

Wild Rose Tea

Englishmen are discovering today that the fruit of the wild rose makes an excellent jam, and is as rich as oranges in Vitamin C.

When steeped as tea, it makes a pleasing hot beverage.

Many Interesting Contests Are Ahead For Young People

Numerous Awards For 4-H Members As Well As Others

Contests are always of interest to young people and are often also of interest to older people. The national 4-H Club News, has already announced several contests for 4-H Club members in the United States, others are pending.

Food preservation winners in each county will be presented a gold medal and the opportunity to compete for the state award which is an all expense trip to the 21st national 4-H Club congress. Five sectional winners from the state victors will be presented $200 college scholarships. This contest is a continuation from the past by an Oklahoma Glass Manufacturing Company.

Dairy Foods team demonstrations will be continued for the third year. Last year teams from 35 states competed at the national dairy show after having won that privilege first in county and then in state contests. Two teams from each county are presented gold and silver medals. State winners receive all expense trips to the national Dairy Show where 8 scholarships of $250 each and a similar number of $100 scholarships are awarded the high placing teams in each of 4 extension sections of the United States.

This contest is sponsored by a Cheese Company and this year should receive extra interest because of the importance of dairy foods. This same company also sponsors the same contest for dairy production demonstration teams. 1942 will be its 6th year.

Contest In Gardening

In connection with Food for Freedom a new gardening contest will be conducted by the Extension Service and sponsored by a national chain store.

This contest offers 5 gold medals in each county, four $25 Defense Bonds in each State and eight educational trips to the National Club Congress. $100 Defense Bonds will be awarded the blue ribbon group at the congress.

Flower garden members or Home Grounds Beautification Members will be permitted to compete as in the past 5 years. That means a gold medal to the county winner, a 17 jewel gold watch to the state winner, and a trip to Chicago for 8 state winners. A Chicago horticultural enthusiast supports this contest.

Food Preparation members for the past 7 years have been permitted a national contest providing gold medals to the county winners, trips to Chicago for the state winners, and six $200 scholarships for National winners. The contest will be continued as in the past. These awards are provided by the home service department of an Indiana concern.

Because of the emphasis on increased meat production this year the national 4-H Meat Animal Contest is particularly important this year. Its participants may work toward gold medals for county winners, gold watches for state winners, trips to Chicago for four sectional winners and three $200 scholarships for National winners.

Girls To Compete

A Chicago packer and Chairman of the National Committee on boys' and girls' work is the sponsor.

Two contests for girls only are to be continued as in the past. They are Girls' Record and Clothing Achievement. 128,272 girls in 38 states were enrolled in the "Girls' Record" contest last year. This contest covered all girls' projects and presented 919 gold medals for county winners. State winners. State winners were given a trip to Chicago where 6 girls were presented $200 college scholarships. A national concern is continuing this contest for its 20th consecutive year in 1942. During those years they have presented 592 different girls with trips to the National Club Congress.

The Clothing Achievement Contest was started only last year with 40 states participating. The number of possible national winners has been doubled so in 1942 12 scholarships of $200 each will be presented. These national awards as well as the gold medals for county winners are provided by the Educational Bureau of a Cotton Company, New York City.

To Award Defense Bonds

The most recent of contests is that sponsored by a Harvester Co. who offers $7,200 in defense bonds to the outstanding 4-H boys and girls in 1942. The bonds will be

Price Ceilings On Meat Scraps Been Lowered

These And Tankage Used In Making Balanced Rations

In a letter received at the County Extension Office, J. W. Burch, director of the Agricultural Extension Service calls attention to the recent action of the Federal Office of Price Administration in lowering the price ceiling on meat scraps and tankage.

As a result of this action, ceilings were lowered $5 a ton on meat scraps and $6 a ton on digester tankage, as compared to the temporary ceilings previously announced.

Meat scraps and digester tankage are used in making balanced rations for feeding hogs and poultry, the tankage being used chiefly as a hog feed. It constitutes about 10 per cent, by weight, of the normal corn and tankage ration.

On January 20, OPA established its temporary price schedule. This move, designed to check the advance in animal product feeding stuff prices, temporarily set ceilings at prices prevailing on January 17, 1942.

Prices for meat scraps and digester tankage prevailing on January 20, 1942, when the temporary ceiling went into effect, represented an increase of approximately $6 and $7 per ton, respectively, over the prices prevailing during the period, October 1-15, 1941.

During the same period, costs involved in the production, transportation and distribution of meat scraps and digester tankage increased only in the neighborhood of $1 per ton.

"Therefore," OPA ruled, "maximum Price Regulation No. 74 established maximum prices for meat scraps at the levels prevailing January 20, 1942, to March 20, 1942, less $5 per ton, and maximum prices for digester tankage at prevailing January 20, 1942 to March 20, 1942, levels, less $6 per ton.

"Furthermore, any abnormal upward trends in the price of wet or dry-rendered tankage," the OPA warned, "or the institution of irregular trade practices would be a basis for establishing suitable control measures over these raw materials."

Courses Open To Farmers

The underfed have little to sacrifice, even less of strength to meet reverses, and they cannot see where public leadership is any great shakes so far as its value to them is concerned. Such groups with listless purposes constitute sectors as vulnerable on the home front as would a fever-stricken regiment on a battle line."—Roy F. Hendrickson, Agricultural Marketing Administrator.

"There are two courses for farmers in the tire situation—(1) conservation, and (2) reorganization of our rural transportation facilities. There is no reason today for five farmers who are going to town on the same day to drive individual cars when one car or truck would do."—M. Clifford Townsend, director of Agricultural Defense Relations, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"Wherever Hitler goes, farmers slip back a thousand years. In Germany itself, farmers are now tied to the soil by iron Nazi law. So are farmers in each conquered land."—Secretary Claude Wickard, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Missouri USDA War Board Question Box

- Q. Can Pettis County farmers produce their share of the Food for Freedom without placing undue strain on their land.
- A. Yes, farmers can take practical steps to conserve fertility for the present and the future.
- Q. What suggestions does the USDA War Board make to farmers regarding soil conservation?
- A. Farmers are requested to fit their crops to the land. Slopes and ridges should be kept in sound rotation.
- Q. Suppose it is necessary to use sloping land for crops which leave the land in a loose condition.
- A. Conservation practices, such as terracing, contour planting, and strip cropping will limit the loss of soil and fertility. In addition, water run off will be slowed down and more moisture will be available for crop production.
- Q. Are there several soil conserving steps that farmers can take immediately to guard against erosion?
- A. Farmers are also advised to improve pastures and leave natural waterways in grass. Authorities say good pasture provides the most economical feed on the farm.
- Q. Will it be necessary to plow up pastures and hillsides in order to secure sufficient agricultural production?
- A. No, thousands of acres of land were rendered practically worthless by the plow up of slopes and light soil during the World War. Soil losses result in small farm incomes, lower living standards and reduced food production.

Help win the war by producing more milk, urges this U. S. D. A. farm poster.

The entire family can help produce the food requested by the Nation. New food goals call for the following increases above 1941—milk, 6 per cent; eggs, 14 per cent; pork, 25 per cent; soybeans for oil, 60 per cent; and a garden for every family.

Suggestions Are Given On Putting In Victory Gardens

By Agriculture Extension Service Kind Of Vegetables To Grow

In deciding what kinds of vegetables to grow, first consideration should be given to the fact that some vegetables have greater food value than others, also that some produce more food per unit of space.

Here are thirteen common vegetables listed in the order of their food value as related to the space they occupy in your garden. If your garden space is limited, begin at the first of this list and plant as many kinds as you have room for. If space is not the problem, plant all of them and others in addition.

Lettuce, spinach, mustard, turnip greens, radishes, tomatoes, peas, beans, carrots, onions, cabbage swiss chard, and beets.

If you have enough garden space to grow all of these in sufficient quantities for the family and still have space left, see your county extension agent for a circular recommending additional kinds.

Get A Planting Calendar

Every vegetable grower should have a copy of the planting calendar published for free distribution by the Missouri Agriculture Extension Service. It shows the date for planting each kind of vegetable, the recommended varieties of each, the amount to plant per each individual in the family, distances between rows and between plants, depth to cover the seed, and other helpful information. Ask your county agent for one of these calendars or a circular containing the calendar.

In general, it should be remembered that most garden seeds are small and should be covered very lightly in a finely prepared seed bed—1/4 inch deep for lettuce, 1/2 inch for most of the other small seeds, 1 inch for peas, beans, sweet corn and similar seeds.

Care should be used, of course, in laying out the garden. Rows should be straight and carefully spaced to make cultivation easier and to provide for succession planting. Plan to keep the ground occupied through the growing season and get maximum production from all available space.

Preparing The Seedbed

A mellow, compact seedbed, smooth and free from big clods and lumps is the goal of the vegetable gardener as he works his ground in preparation for seeding.

Whether to use a plow or spade in turning the ground depends largely on the size of the area. If the ground was turned last fall or during the winter, disking, harrowing, or raking may be all that is required now.

Ground limestone scattered over the worked soil before the final smoothing down is done, will aid the soil tilth and increase the production of vegetables. About 1 pound of ground limestone per 20 square feet of area is sufficient.

The practice of heaping the earth to make beds for different vegetables has not been found practical in normal years in Missouri because such beds dry out quickly and the growing crop suffers from lack of moisture more than those planted on a seedbed level with the remainder of the garden.

The planting of the rows all in one direction makes for greater ease of cultivation and enables one to arrange the garden efficiently.

Choosing A Tomato Variety

Though tomato seeds and plants have been offered for sale under some 800 variety names, practically all tomatoes grown in this country actually represent not more than 35 true varieties and strains. Out of this latter number, J. W. C. Anderson of the College of Agriculture recommends only 8 to 9 for the Missouri gardener.

This year, when the maximum amount of food must be grown on every available garden area, it is well to use the standard varieties that have proven their value under Missouri conditions.

Rutgers, Marglobe, Pritchard, and Break O'Day are four varieties that are classed as wilt-resistant. They produce medium large, red, globe-shaped tomatoes. These tomatoes are fleshy with thick walls and small seed cavities and are firmer than many of the other varieties. The plants are vigorous and, on good soil, produce high yields of excellent fruit throughout the season.

The Stone and Baltimore produce medium large, red tomatoes somewhat more flattened than the four first named. The plants are sturdy and if given good care and fertile soil will produce heavy yields.

The Bonny Best is a variety which is adapted to home production in those places where no wilt is present. It attacked by wilt this variety goes down rapidly and is soon killed by it. Its tomatoes are red, medium in size, and a slightly flattened globe in shape. Not quite so solid as the Rutgers and Marglobe but a few days earlier. Yields well on good soil that is free from wilt.

All of the foregoing varieties are excellent for growing under Missouri conditions. Only one planting is needed of any of those named above, since all will continue to grow and produce fruit as long as weather conditions are favorable. Persons who plan to set a few plants for early production and then make a later planting for a second crop would really get better results by setting all their plants at the earlier date.

When strong, healthy plants are set in fertile soil immediately after danger of frost is past, they have several weeks of good growing weather in which to develop a large, deep root system and a strong, vigorous top before the hot weather comes. With such a start they are much better able to withstand the adverse weather conditions than the plants which are set late.

Two other varieties may be grown with fair success and for variety of shape and flavor, but should not be depended upon for the total crop, since the length of their productive season is uncertain. There are the Eriheria and the Ponderosa; the former a large tomato, which is often very rough with a mottled green and red color, the latter an extremely large and often very rough tomato of pink color and mild flavor.

Time To Grow Tomato Plants

Tomato plants should be set out immediately after danger of frost is past. Unless sturdy, healthy, properly grown plants of the best varieties can be obtained from reliable local growers, the gardener should at once set about growing his own plants.

This can be done successfully under ideal conditions and with special care in 45 to 50 days, and certainly in not more than 60 days even under less favorable conditions.

A box, pan or flower pot is filled with fertile soil and the seed is planted thinly in rows. It is best to barely cover the seed and then keep the soil moist and in a warm place until the seed germinates and the plants start to develop.

As soon as the first true leaves develop, transplant the plants into other boxes filled with fine, fertile soil, spacing the plants 2 inches apart both ways. They may be transplanted into individual pots or cans where they will grow until ready to set out. The soil should be kept moist and the containers in a warm place until a week or ten days before final transfer to the garden. During this latter interval they should be exposed to outside temperature to harden them.

In transplanting, care should be used to keep the roots and the soil about them in an unbroken mass, lifting this out with the plant and placing it in the ground as nearly in its original condition as possible. If this is done the plant will continue to grow without any setback.

Care Of Old Asparagus Beds

A well established asparagus bed, with proper care, should furnish an abundant supply of asparagus for the family for a period of 20 years or more, says J. W. C. Anderson of the College of Agriculture. Some beds in Missouri, still in production, have been giving good yields for more than 30 years.

Early each spring a 2-inch layer of well rotted manure or compost should be put on the asparagus bed and to this should be added finely ground limestone and a complete fertilizer such as a 4-14-4 mixture. This application should include 1 pound each of limestone and fertilizer for every 20 square feet of the bed. All this material should then be worked into the topsoil as deeply as possible without injuring the crowns.

Cutting of the asparagus shoots may continue for about six weeks, after which another application of fertilizer should be put on and thoroughly cultivated into the soil. Any injury of small shoots in this operation is of little consequence since no permanent damage will be done to the plants. The tops should then be allowed to grow up and stand during the remainder of the year so that the plant may manufacture plant food and store it in the roots for heavy production the following spring.

Best Cabbage Plants Are Cheap

Since the cabbage crop depends to a large extent on the kind of plant used, extreme care is justified in getting sturdy, vigorous, disease-free plants, locally grown from seed of the right varieties.

The best plants are the most economical plants in the long run, since cheap, weak, dried - out yellow plants not only fail to produce good yields but result in waste of time, space, fertilizer, and labor.

Cheap plants that are shipped in from sources concerning which the buyer has no reliable information, often are infected with cabbage yellows, the worst disease to which the cabbage is subject.

Starting A New Asparagus Bed

A new asparagus bed may be started by digging up an old planting and selecting the crowns or by purchasing them from a reliable nursery. One-year-old crowns are more successful because they make more vigorous growth and become established more quickly.

The Mary Washington variety is an excellent one which is rust-resistant and a high yielder.

Choose a place which is well drained and so located that it will not interfere with the cultivation and care of the annual vegetables.

On exceptionally fertile soil, the crowns may be set without a great deal of preparatory work. However, in most instances it will pay to go to a little extra work and make a planting that will be productive for 15 to 20 years.

An excellent start may be made by digging a trench 2 feet deep and 1 1/2 feet wide and then thoroughly mixing well rotted barn-mix in 1 pound of 4-16-4 fertilizer yard manure with the soil. Also add about 1/2 pound of limestone to every three feet of trench.

Mix these materials thoroughly with the soil and refill the trench to within 4 to 6 inches of the level of the ground. Then set the asparagus crowns in the trench, spreading the roots and covering the crowns with about 2 inches of soil. When the shoots grow through this, add the rest of the soil, filling the trench.

Weed Strawberry Patch

The bearing strawberry patch needs an early weeding this spring

Culling In The Laying Flocks

A systematized culling program of the laying flocks give maximum returns to farmers. Such a program is not just culling the flock in the fall before putting them in laying houses, but it includes regular culling throughout the laying season.

Systematized culling cuts out the diseased birds and non-producers from the laying flock. By doing this, we increase the average egg production of the flock and retain the superior quality hens. Also cuts feed cost.

At present price of feed and market value of hens it is more profitable for the poultry owner to sell the non-producers on the market.

Culling requires certain equipment which can be made at low cost. Make two frame gates out of 1x4, 4 feet high and 6 feet long. Cover the frame gates with 11-2 inch poultry wire, or old fence wire can be used. Hinge these two gates together with old hinges or leather. This frame can be set in the corner of the laying house and the hens can be driven into it, in small lots, so each hen can be handled.

In order to maintain the laying flock more pullets must be raised in the spring to replace the hens that were culled out. These pullets must be raised on cleaned grounds so they will go in the laying house this fall healthy.

Go through the same culling each year with your laying flock for maximum production and return.

If it is to produce its expected quota of shortcakes, fresh strawberries, and preserves. Some wheat or oats and other weeds may have grown from seeds in the mulching material. Also a few "winter weeds" usually appear. All should be carefully removed by hand pulling or with a hoe. Any mulch disturbed in the weeding process should be replaced to conserve moisture and keep the fruit clean.

Still Time To Plant Potatoes

If the lateness of spring this year has kept you from planting potatoes at the usual recommended date, you probably have time to get at least a good part of a crop.

Under these conditions, however, it will be necessary to use northern certified seed, treat it to prevent disease, cut the seed pieces large to give a quicker start, and use fertilizer to hurry the crop along.

The varieties most apt to succeed at this date is the Irish Cobbler. Insist on certified seed of northern origin, making sure that each bag carries a tag showing official state certification that the seed was produced in an inspected field and found free of seed-borne diseases.

Be sure to treat the seed either with acid-mercury or the Semesan-Bel new improved treatment just before cutting.

Cut the seed in liberal-sized pieces, about 2 ozs each, or 4 pieces to a good-sized potato. Plant not over 4 inches deep in a well prepared seedbed, 12 to 18 inches apart in rows at least 36 inches apart.

Use a 4-12-4 or a 4-16-4 fertilizer, applying along each side of

Plowing May Not Be Easy This Season

Advice Not To Cultivate Soil When Too Wet

It is probable that soils will not be so easy to plow and cultivate this spring, and that it will be more difficult to prepare a good seedbed, says H. H. Krusekopf of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture in pointing out that the tilth or structure (workability) of soils is generally in an undesirable condition. It may require more disking and harrowing than usual to put the soil in good tilth.

The soils seem compact or run together, and at the surface do not have the normal granular or mellow structure. This condition is most apparent on bare or fallow fields, and on soils that have a low content of organic matter. The glazed appearance of the surface soil, and the tendency to form a crust and be cloddy, all are evidences of poor tilth.

It is highly advisable under these conditions to avoid cultivating the land when the soil is wet. Even if the season is late, it probably is better to delay all cultivating until the soil moisture is favorable. If soil is cultivated when wet, the poor tilth will be aggravated and will persist throughout the year. Soil in this condition is more difficult to cultivate and is less resistant to dry weather. Cultivation alone will never restore good tilth to a soil.

There are several reasons for the present condition of the soil. The ground has been in an almost constantly saturated condition since the heavy rains of last October. Rains were rather frequent during the winter and there was little drying weather. The ground has been wet for about six months, and much of the pore space has been filled with water instead of air. The comparatively mild winter was another factor. The soil did not freeze to any considerable depth and there was little alternate freezing and thawing. The loosening effect usually attributed to freezing has therefore been slight.

Meeting Tuesday On Flower Gardens

All Home Economic Extension women and others interested are welcome to attend a garden meeting on Tuesday, April 14, at 2 p. m. in the assembly room of the court house. This garden meeting has to do with flower gardens and home grounds. Emphasis is to be placed on bulb plants, however, all questions pertaining to the beautification of home grounds will be given consideration.

Miss Julia Rocheford, specialist from Missouri University College of Agriculture will conduct the meeting.

ENTER, THE COLONEL

CHAPTER XIV

"ASIA!" uttered Sargent, and Allan could sense a shiver passing through the frail old body. "Man, be careful of her! She's evil incarnate! She appears to have considerable authority over the Japanese, and it was she who was going to torture Kay!"

"Really!" exclaimed Allan softly. "Glad you mentioned it, Doctor! Now, listen to my yarn." In quick, whispered phrases he gave a summary of his experiences to date. He ended with a subject of peculiar interest to himself, the story of Harry Bishop's ghastly fate. "Have you any notion what they could have done to him?"

"I know what they did! They explained the trick to me in detail because it was one they threatened to do to Kay. They inject a preparation of rattlesnake venom into the victim's spinal fluid. If you'll tell that to your doctors—in case I don't get out of here myself—they'll know what to do for your friend. He can be cured."

"Thank God!" breathed Allan fervently. "If only—"

The passage was suddenly flooded with light. Somebody had stolen up behind him unheard and pressed the button of a powerful electric torch. A harsh, guttural voice he recognized only too well snapped an order pitched to a note of malicious satisfaction.

"Hands up!" commanded the Eurasian. "This time there'll be no nonsense, understand? Follow me as I back out. A false move will be your last!"

Allan heard a gasp of dismay from Sargent, and found no word of hope to leave with the old man. He moved forward slowly as the torch retreated. He quite believed the ugly man's statement; on this occasion there'd be no nonsense. His number was up.

Now they were outside. Beyond the circle of light from the torch, something white moved in the darkness. A voice spoke in a queer tongue utterly foreign to his knowledge of languages, but it was a woman's voice and he recognized it with a start. Asia!

There was a brief exchange between servant and mistress. He sounded sullen and rebellious; she was peremptory, and the argument ended when she stamped her foot.

"COME, señor—Allan! I fear you must return as you came if you wish to get back unscathed." She walked toward the shore, Allan at her elbow and silent while he tried to adapt himself to this change in his fortunes. "You were brave to come here tonight—but you'd have been a dead man at dawn if I hadn't interfered! You realize that?"

"Yes. Why did you do it, Asia?"

"Why? Just for the moment, let us agree to call it a woman's whim." Her voice was very soft, very alluring and provocative. Her body brushed against his in the dark, and he felt—a most unromantic smile—as if an electric eel had touched him with all its juice turned on. Now they were at the water's edge. "I must hurry away," whispered the lady, "and so must you. Good night—dear Allan!"

"Good night, Asia—and thanks!"

Then it happened. Her arms were about his neck, her lithe form was welded to his, her warm lips were pressed hard against his mouth. A second she clung there—laughed tremulously—and was gone!

Allan swam back to prison rather slowly, and never once thought about sharks on the way. Kay Sargent was waiting on the dock, and he heard her quick breath of relief as he slithered onto the pier at her feet. As they strolled up to the bungalow he told her about her father, and also explained the meaning of the lights she had seen flashing on the main island. While he talked to Kay, Allan regained most of the equilibrium he had lost to Asia's potent charm. He regained the rest of it in the lighted foyer of the house when she stared at him, drew away slightly, and remarked on what a pity it was the waters of the Gulf didn't wash off lipstick. Her good night was chilly, and his disgruntled.

Miss Sargent's coolness lasted for nearly four days, but at dusk on the fourth she came bursting into the small patio where he was restlessly pacing the tiled walk.

"Oh, Allan, guess what's happened! I was looking toward the island from my room window just now and I saw a man I met at Ensenada! A Colonel Escobar of the Rurales! In charge of this district, he told me! He was staring straight at me, and what do you think I did?"

"Threw him a kiss," suggested Allan moodily.

"No," said Kay, too excited to be indignant. "I raised and lowered the window shade several times in code! I sent him SOS! Father made me learn it once. The Colonel didn't make any sign, but I know he must have seen me. He was looking right at me!"

"That's odd," muttered Allan. "You'd think he might have thrown a kiss at least, huh?"

"We-ell," replied Kay a bit bleakly, "just at that moment the Asia creature came up and they went off arm-in-arm. I suppose she's got him, too."

Allan now understood why he'd heard nothing from Asia since their one-sided embrace; she had finally got Escobar where she wanted him, on terms of such intimacy she dared bring him to the sacred precincts of the "cannery," and she'd put aside her new victim until she had bled the old one dry!

It would have been brutal to tell Kay what a broken reed she was leaning upon in the person of el señor Colonel Alfredo Escobar y Carvajal. Instead, he snapped out of his reverie and showered her with praises for her ingenuity and wit, and made them sound convincing. Kay was human, and the shower left her purring like a cream-fed kitten.

Accordingly, at 10 o'clock that evening, while the three of them were playing rummy in the living room and listening to the radio, Allan was startled by the noise of a spurred boot crossing the foyer. The cards he was holding fell from his fingers a moment after when he saw the slim figure of Escobar, trim and immaculate as ever, standing in the doorway. The officer looked at Kay Sargent and saluted politely. He was about to address her when his gaze wandered to Allan. His eyes widened.

"The devil! Is this where you are?"

"It is indeed. Where did you think I was, Colonel?"

"Sun Su told me you had suddenly packed your belongings and driven off to Palo Seco, on the mainland, where you expected to get better pictures than here. Of course, I shouldn't have believed him."

"Why, the idiot knew perfectly well—"

Allan cut short his remark lest he get the Chinese in trouble. Sun Su distrusted Escobar, he reminded himself, and naturally had lied to him. Now Escobar was looking inquisitively at Pierre, who had risen to bow smilingly. Kay hastened to perform the amenities.

"Colonel Escobar, this is M. de Fontanelle, a very good friend of ours. Like Mr. Steele, my father and myself, he is being held prisoner by these—these mysterious Japanese fish people!"

"Ah, yes," the rurales looked puzzled, but friendly. "I have not had the pleasure of meeting M. de Fontanelle before, but if he is being detained here against his will, he'll be glad, no doubt, to hear I am a rescue party of one."

V for Victory

Rugs and carpet manufacturers are converting their plants to manufacture bagging material, camouflage cloth, cotton duck, blankets, cotton and wool yarns. Scarcity of jute and wool made curtailment of rug and carpet production necessary.

Price control action designed to aid the American farmer has been taken by the OPA in the form of a "freeze" of fertilizer prices, a major item of cost to farmers.

Steel mill superintendents are exchanging "tricks of the trade" to increase iron and steel tonnage for war production. Production costs are forgotten for the time being to make full use of any expedient that will result in producing even a few more tons of pig iron a day.

Though use of chlorine in laundry operations, textile bleaching and shellac bleaching has been restricted, no restrictions have been placed upon public pools or those belonging to schools or other semi-public organizations.

Use of a small group of standard steels rather than thousands of special-order steels for war equipment. Emphasis is laid on 77 carbon steels and 87 alloy steels selection after a two-year study. Continuous production of one class of alloy steel increases efficiency of furnace crews.

Mind Your Manners

1. When a young girl introduces a boy to her mother, would it be better for her to say, "Mother, this is Joe Brown" or "Mother, may I present Mr. Brown?"

2. When a student introduces his father to a woman teacher should he say, "Miss Smith, this is my father, Mr. Jones?"

3. When a man introduces his employer to his wife does he refer to her as "My wife" or as "Mrs. Smith?"

4. Is it good manners when talking to friends for a wife to criticize her mother-in-law?

5. If members of a family have trouble getting along should they keep it to themselves?

What would you do if—

You are a mother talking to other women, some of whom have children and some of whom do not—

(a) Don't talk about your children, and if one of the other women does, switch the subject as soon as you can?

(b) Talk about children as much as you and the other mothers want to?

Answers

1. The former.

2. Unless it is his stepfather and he does not go by his stepfather's name, it is unnecessary to mention the name.

3. "My wife."

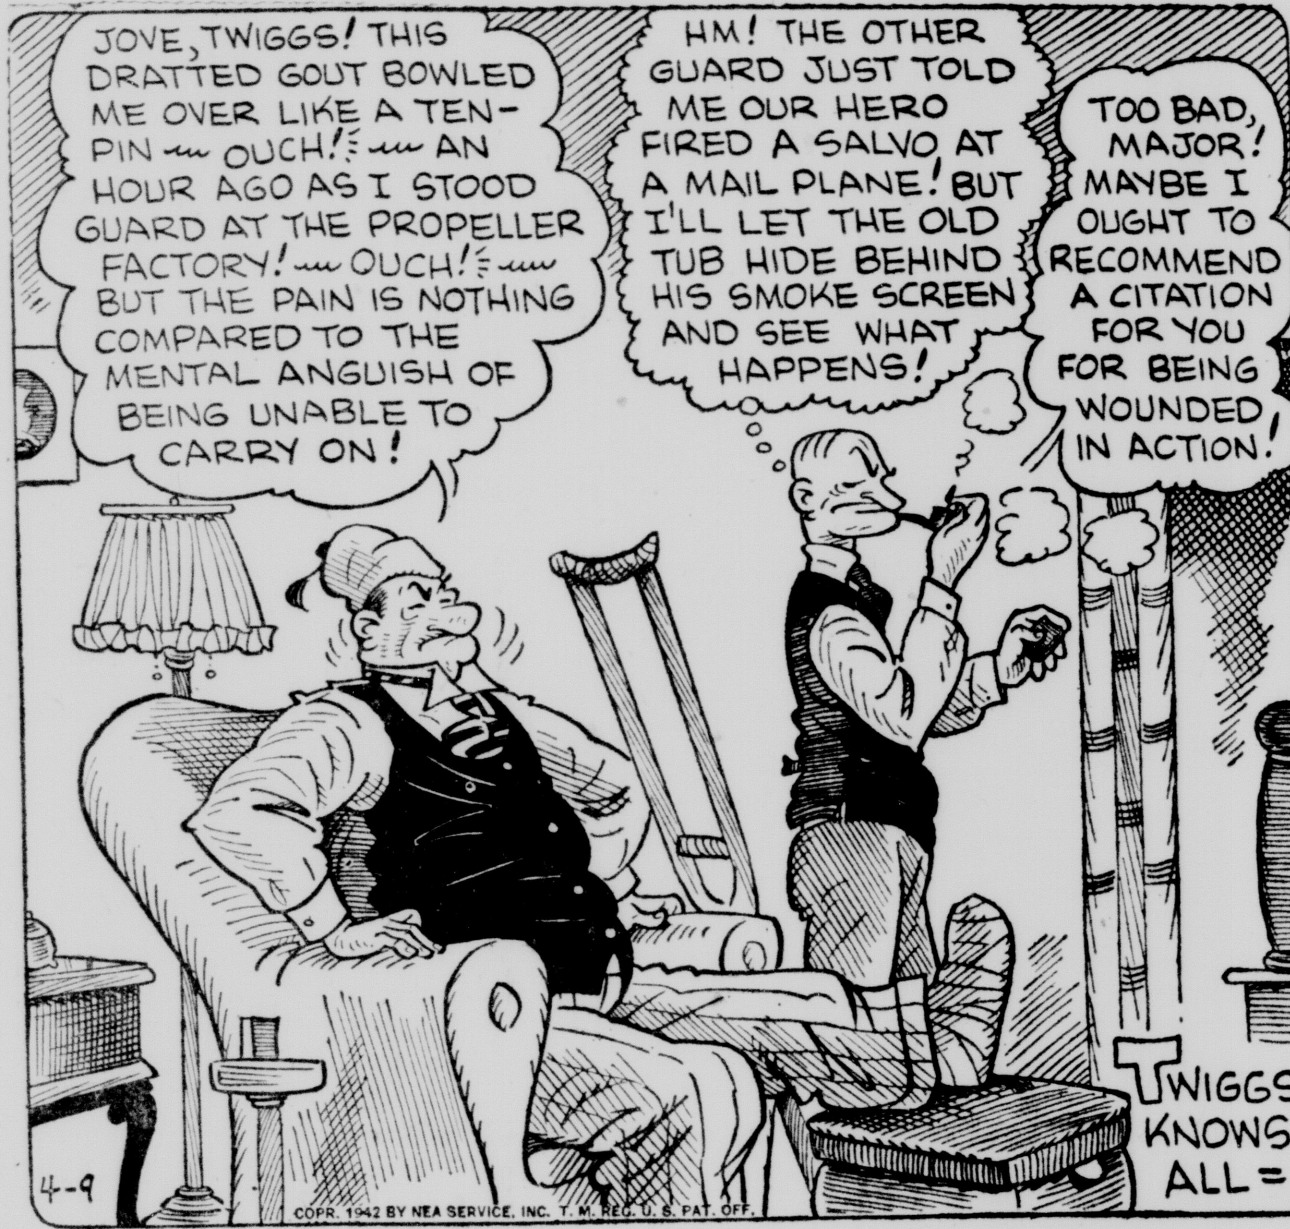

4. No.

5. Yes.

Better "What Would You Do" solution—(a). Otherwise you'll bore the women who don't have children.

Thirty-six Lost In Torpedoes

NORFOLK, Va., April 9—(P)—A West Point plebe who went to sea for his health and a freelance writer seeking story material were among 31 survivors of two American merchantmen shelled and torpedoed by axis submarines off the Atlantic coast last week.

The navy announced today the attack on the two vessels with the probable loss of 36 lives. Seventeen crewmen were known dead and 10 or 11 missing in a shell-fire attack that sank a small freighter the night of April 2. Three survivors from the ship were landed here by a rescue vessel.

Two torpedoes from an enemy raider turned a medium-sized merchant ship into a flaming inferno in the second attack two nights later and left nine of the ship's crew missing, members of the 28 survivors reported on their arrival at Norfolk aboard a rescue vessel the next day.

Brazil Is To Add Reserves Increase Army

Army May Be Built Up To A Total Of 1,200,000

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 9—(P)—President Getulio Vargas signed a decree Wednesday night authorizing War Minister Eurio Dutra to drastically increase the effective army of Brazil with trained reserves.

In the decree, the president said the army strength "does not correspond to the new heavy duty of the army in the maintenance of public order and national defense."

The army was reported to total less than 100,000 but with the addition of trained reserves it eventually might number as high as 1,200,000.

Voluntary enlistments also were called for in the decree which specified that the war ministry increase the effective reserve belonging to units available for the active forces.

It was known that the government has been recalled a number of trained classes during recent months.

Brazil broke relations with the axis on the last day of the Pan-American conference of foreign ministers here in January and since has lost five merchant ships to axis submarines in the Atlantic.

Drastic Order On Construction

WASHINGTON, April 9—(P)—The war production board Wednesday night prohibited new construction of non-essential residences, roads and commercial buildings, indicating projects already under way might be halted if the materials going into them could be used more effectively in the war program.

The order is effective tomorrow. Specifically it bans any residential construction other than maintenance and repair work if the cost is $500 or more, unless specific government permission is granted; similar permission must be obtained for any new agricultural construction if the estimated cost is $1,000 or more.

No other types of construction, commercial industrial, recreational, institutional highway, or utilities, whether publicly or privately financed may be started without permission if the cost of the project is more than $5,000.

"It is in the national interest that all construction which is not essential directly or indirectly to the successful prosecution of the war, and which involves the use of labor, material or equipment urgently needed in the war effort, be deferred for the duration of the emergency," the board stated.

Stiff Fine For Intoxicated Cyclist

ST. LOUIS, April 9—(P)—With the bicycle coming to the forefront again as a means of transportation, something like this could have been expected: A man was fined $95 and sentenced to 15 days in the city workhouse Wednesday for riding a bicycle while intoxicated.

Will Discuss Stock Problems

Pettis County livestock producers will have an opportunity to discuss their livestock problems with representatives of the Agricultural Extension Service, Producers Livestock Marketing Association and the Marketing Department of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation at the annual livestock meeting that will be held in the assembly room of the Court House, Tuesday night, April 28, 8 o'clock.

Topics for discussion will include: Production practices which protect producer and consumer. Present position of producer with respect to supply, demand, war, and post-war period.

Marketing intentions of feeders who will go to market this spring and summer.

Price ceilings—effect on producers' programs and possible necessary adjustments. Possible transportation charges and effect on the livestock producer and his production and marketing program.

1942 Swine and Beef Production Contests.

Available feed per animal unit. Hog and cattle production problems.

Selling the 1942 wool clip. Since these, and other related subjects are timely and important all livestock producers are invited to attend.

Making Bread As A Pleasure

"Bread making can be a pleasure not a task," says Mrs. Ralph Thomas of the Champion Striped College Home Economics Extension Club.

Mrs. Thomas kept a record of the amount and cost of bread baked from a 24 pound sack of flour. She found she made 26 loaves which weighed 23 pounds. She spent $1 for the flour, 6c for sugar, and used 7c worth of salt and lard. Her fuel cost was 15c making a total cash of $1.28. Mrs. Thomas says, "I am comparing my bread with the 10c bread, and I feel that the quality of it is much better than the 5c." That makes a cash difference of $1.32 for 11 hours of labor. To Mrs. Thomas that 12c an hour cash value means little as compared to the personal satisfaction.

She uses flour which has been enriched so she is certain that her family is getting food value as well as filling. Along with her work she has a philosophy that is worth considering. It is that anything is a pleasure, no matter how hard the task, if when it is finished it is very successful. Mrs. Thomas says, "what is nicer than turning out three loaves of golden brown bread and at the meal having the family exclaim, 'Mother, your bread is delicious.'"

Queries And Answers On Non-Defense Construction

WASHINGTON, April 9—(P)—Some questions and answers on the war production board's order curbing new non-defense construction.

Q. Does the order apply only to private construction?

A. No, it affects projects of federal, state and local governments as well.

Q. Does it suspend construction already under way pending government approval?

A. Nothing in the order halts construction already begun, but WPB warned that such uncompleted construction might be stopped later, if the materials to be used are needed for war purposes.

Q. Does the order give any assistance in finishing such partly completed jobs?

A. No.

Q. How can a builder get materials to finish a partly constructed house then?

A. Any building materials dealer may supply them if he is satisfied that the project was actually started prior to the effective date of the order, April 9.

Q. Can a contractor take materials out of his own stockpile to start a new construction job?

A. No.

Q. Under the provision for unrestricted residential building up to $500, could a home owner install a $500 bathroom in May and a $500 porch in October?

A. Not without permission. No more than $500 can be spent in any 12-month period, dating from the start of the construction. However, a $300 bathroom in May and a $200 porch in October would be all right.

Q. If a dwelling needed replacement of its foundation work, or a new roof, costing $700, would special permission be required?

A. No, there is no restriction on any repair or maintenance work actually needed to "return a structure to sound working condition without a change of design."

Q. The order permits agricultural construction up to $1,000, without permission. Does that mean a farmer can put a $1,000 addition on his home?

A. No. Agricultural construction as defined by the order means any building "used in the production of agricultural products"—that is, a barn, milk shed, hen house, silo or other productively useful structure—and residential construction is specifically excluded.

Q. Does this order prevent continued residential construction in the defense housing "critical areas" already designated by the government?

A. No, presumably the procedure for public and private construction in such designated areas will continue as in the past, with the existing $6,000 sales price limit on such homes continued in effect to insure that they will be within the means of war plant workers and the families of enlisted military personnel.

Q. Does this order prevent construction of new homes in the defense housing "critical areas" already designated by the government?

Charge Of Big Gambling Group

NEW YORK, April 9—(P)—Existence of a gambling syndicate in Brooklyn which did a $100,000,000 business yearly by paying for police protection and operating "unabated and in open and flagrant violation of the penal laws" was charged Wednesday in presentments handed up by two special county grand juries.

Special Assistant Attorney General John Harlan Amen, who led an 11 months' investigation into the activities of bookmakers and policy banks, charged that the yearly protection "take" was more than $1,000,000.

The presentments named 49 members of the police department and four lawyers. The jury charged that the lawyers represented policy organizations and appeared regularly in behalf of individuals who did not hire them.

In making public the presentments, Amen issued a statement saying "there is in existence in the police department an organized system of graft and corruption which operates on a city-wide scale."

"Its roots are so deep and the lines along which it operates so well-fixed that despite frequent changes of personnel in all ranks its activities continue with little if any let-up," he said.

Amen said his investigation was well under way when the nation entered the war and the question arose whether the nation effort would suffer or gain by the exposure.

"No nation has ever yet suffered because graft and corruption has been uncovered and rooted out," Amen said. "On the contrary, the correction of these evils
